Why does this website exist?

- Reasons

Reasons

I love my Children with all of my Heart. As most parents, I want them to have the benefit of my life and experiences. Throughout my life I have discovered that we as human beings have been blessed with the most amazing gifts, and yet most of us are blind to them. I have also found that the truth "Seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened" permeates the entire existence. The truth is in all religions that I have studied. It permeates the minds of the successful. The growth of any individual is based on this promise. Seek what you want and remember the other Universal promise "As a person thinketh in their heart so are they". I hope this content helps you and your family in their search for growth and Understanding.

- a Dad.